Tech Mentor

The ideal candidate should bring technical expertise and experience in teaching, coaching, or mentoring. Experience in mobile development and demonstrated knowledge of the iOS platform are expected. The candidate must have a good command of various programming languages. Additionally, they should be open to learning and exploring new pedagogical models, actively engaging in the learning process alongside the students.

Furthermore, the candidate will be expected to collaborate with an extended team to establish a robust collection of high-quality teaching practices and materials. This includes developing technical solutions for use by mentors, mentees, and administrators of the Apple Developer Academy programs.

Moreover, the ideal candidate should be able to provide proof of their contributions to an App currently available in the App Store, where they were a member of the contributing team.

Key Qualifications

• Experience in software development in Apple's ecosystem in the past three years
• Deep knowledge in SwiftUI and UIKit
• Experience with developer IDEs including Xcode
• Good knowledge in programming logic and computational thinking
• Fluency in Korean written and oral communication skills; English skill is a plus

An individual who can demonstrate any of the following experiences:
• Experience in developing and operating on various platforms such as tvOS, watchOS, macOS, etc.
• Experience in IoT or micro-computer systems like Arduino or Raspberry Pi.
• Experience in game development using low-level graphics libraries like Metal or OpenGL.
• Extensive experience using Machine Learning in their product.
• Experience in a systematic development process.
• Individuals who are interested in new paradigms such as functional coding.
• Experience working in Agile teams and other development methodologies.
• Experience with UI Testing and Testing tools

Additional Desired Qualities

• Learning Mindset: The ideal candidate should have a strong desire for continuous learning and professional growth. They should stay updated on the latest trends, technologies, and best practices in career development and be willing to adapt their strategies accordingly. A passion for personal development and a commitment to ongoing education is highly valued.

• Knowledge Sharing: The candidate should be enthusiastic about sharing their knowledge and expertise with students, colleagues, and the wider community. They should possess excellent communication and presentation skills, allowing them to effectively convey information and insights in a clear and engaging manner.

• Modeling: The candidate should demonstrate high ethical standards, professionalism, and integrity in their interactions with students and colleagues. They should serve as a positive role model, inspiring students to develop strong values, work ethics, and social responsibility.
Learning Development Mentor

In this role, the candidate will be responsible for supporting students in planning their personal learning and career paths, thus providing mentoring for young professionals to make informed decisions about their futures.

The ideal candidate will bring expertise in organizational learning, and coaching/mentoring, particularly in the area of career development. The candidate must be open to learning and exploring new pedagogical models. You will learn alongside your students. You will work with an extended team to build a strong collection of high-quality teaching and learning practices. The candidate should have training experience in today’s fast-paced business environment, and ideally has background in mentoring programs or the education sector.

Responsibilities

- Personal and Group mentoring: Engage with students individually or in group settings to complete their projects and construct personal learning paths. The mentor must offer personalized guidance and support to help learners explore potential career paths based on their unique strengths and interests. Also, facilitate meaningful discussions and help students gain self-awareness in relation to their professional choices.

- Employability Networking: Build connections between students and professionals in various industries through networking events, mentorship programs, or informal interviews. Model for learners to build their professional networks. Stay current on job market trends, industry demands, and emerging career opportunities. Provide students with valuable insights and information about potential career paths, including job outlook, required skills, and educational pathways.

- Workshops and Presentations: Conduct workshops, seminars, and presentations on professional skills and employability, including presentation, collaboration, networking, resume building, interview skills, and job search strategies. Develop engaging and informative experience on essential career development techniques. This can be done individually, in a team, or outsourced as appropriate.

- Collaboration with Stakeholders: Collaborate with other mentors and other stakeholders to align career planning initiatives with existing curriculum and objectives. Coordinate with external organizations and employers to provide students with internship and job shadowing opportunities.

Key Qualifications

- Proven experience in solid organizational learning and learning designing for corporate or youth program.
- Personal / group coaching experience. Including goal setting. Evaluation. assessment facilitation for individual and groups.
- Career counselling or mentorship experience preferred.
- Excellent interpersonal and communication skills to effectively engage and inspire students.
- Ability to work collaboratively with students, staffs, and other stakeholders.
- Demonstrated ability to deliver engaging presentations and workshops.
- High level of empathy and understanding of students' diverse backgrounds and needs.
- Business proficient level in English. This position will be engaging with international stakeholders and attending learning conferences.

Additional Desired Qualities

- Learning Mindset: The ideal candidate should have a strong desire for continuous learning and professional growth. They should stay updated on the latest trends, technologies, and best practices in career development and be willing to adapt their strategies accordingly. A passion for personal development and a commitment to ongoing education is highly valued.

- Knowledge Sharing: The candidate should be enthusiastic about sharing their knowledge and expertise with students, colleagues, and the wider community. They should possess excellent communication and presentation skills, allowing them to effectively convey information and insights in a clear and engaging manner.
• Modeling: The candidate should demonstrate high ethical standards, professionalism, and integrity in their interactions with students and colleagues. They should serve as a positive role model, inspiring students to develop strong values, work ethics, and social responsibility.